DETROIT BANKING HOPE DONOVAN

Fans Hope Rumor About Twirler's Arm Trouble Is Unfounded.

TIGERS HOODOO BASES ON BALLS

Passes Pave Way to Defeat—Cubs'
Show Class in Guessing Opponents' Hand.

By WILLIAM G. WEART.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 14.—The Cubs came right back at the Tigers yesterday, and the series now stands three victories to one in favor of the former.

Detroit, which had another bad attack of baseball fever after Jennings' men overthrew the world champions on Monday, is a tractable patient this morning, and the wave of tremendous rooting has subsided to a large extent.

There are rumors that Donovan, who is expected to pitch today, has some trouble with his arm. The same report was circulated yesterday about Brown, and it proved to be unfounded, for he pitched a masterly game.

If same rumor is flitting with the truth and Donovan goes in today the Tigers' chances should be good for a victory. On the form that "Wild Bill" showed last Sunday, and with Brown out of the road, there doesn't appear to be any Cub twirler able to cope with him, for Overall is not expected to be able to repeat so soon.

Financial Returns.

The success of the Tigers in finally breaking the string of disasters which has followed them in their early ventures put a considerable sum in the pockets of all those financially involved in the series. As it was, the attendance of 12,907 was 2,100 more than last Saturday, and receipts were nearly $3,000 larger than when the teams met for their first game.

Secretary Navin, of the Detroit club, said that the receipts for yesterday's game exceeded the supply by fully $5,000. "The people," said Mr. Navin, "are willing to pay any price for reserved seats, but it is a case of the best or nothing with them. In consequence of the turnouts for the last two games the receipts will figure, in which the players will share, while not coming up to early predictions, are a trifle better than last fall. Then the receipts for the first five games, for the players share in a division for that number, owing to a tie in the sixth, was $100,000. This was an average of $20,000 per game. The gross receipts for the four games of the series were $55,322.50, an average of more than $13,830.62 per game. The players will get $46,115.19, as against $55,000 and $25,000 in bonuses in 1907."

Passes Turn Trick.

With Summers and Brown pitching almost unbeatable ball yesterday and the fielders keyed up to a high pitch, there came two innings which proved the turning point of the game and possibly of the series. Bases on balls, which are proving a heavy handicap in this series, caused all of the Tigers' trouble. With two men out in the third inning, Steinfeldt received a pass and stole second, while Chance was hit by a ball. Steinfeldt, who had been in the game since the first inning, made a great play, catching Steinfeldt's error, the chances are that there would have been no scoring. The Cubs showed their class in the fourth inning when they figured out just what the Tigers would do and worked their play accordingly and with wonderful effect. Brown had a little trouble in the fifth, but he was able to talk with Steinfeldt in preparation for the springing of a trap. Brown then pitched a slow outshoot to Cobb and Brown's throw and O'Leary was caught.

It was a neat guessing game and the Cubs proved supreme and averted what looked like a very dangerous situation. A few seconds later a good throw to Tinker caught Crawford napping off second base. It was certainly a wonderful play, bringing out of the hole and the effect these two plays had on the world series was tremendous.

ANGRY MEN WANT TO LYNCH NEGRO

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 14.—A posse of infuriated men has gone to the mountains in pursuit of a negro who assaulted Miss Jennie Foreman, near here, this morning.

Miss Foreman was accompanied by Miss Smith, a school teacher, when the negro attacked her. Miss Smith's cries drew men who were working in the fields near by. The negro fled in a panic and fled to the hills. It is said that he will be lynched.

WEATHER REPORT.

Heavy frost is again reported generally in the Middle Atlantic States, with temperature about ten degrees below the seasonal average.

Fair weather has prevailed during the last twenty-four hours, except from the north Pacific coast over the northern Rocky mountain region, where heavy rains have occurred in areas, and at Hatteras, N. C., where rain is reported locally.

Weather will rise with fair weather in the Middle Atlantic and Southeastern States during the next thirty-six hours.

The winds from the middle Atlantic coast will be light variable, shifting to southerly; on the south Atlantic coast light to fresh from the north; on the Gulf coast light northeasterly.

Steamers departing today for European ports will have light to fresh southerly winds and fair weather to the Grand Banks.

COL. TUCKER WILL FIGHT EXTRADITION

COL. WILLIAM F. TUCKER,
Whose Wife Has Charged Him With Desertion.

Friends of Army Officer, Who Is Sick in St. Louis After Arrest, Determined to Prevent His Return to Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Friends of Col. William F. Tucker, arrested at Decatur, Ill., and now sick in a hotel in St. Louis, are trying to prevent the authorities from returning him to Chicago to stand trial on the charge of wife desertion, which the warrant contained.

They declare Colonel Tucker was on his way to Hot Springs, Ark., under an official order from the War Department, and that the civil authorities have no right to interfere with him.

Three brother officers in the United States army laid the matter before Chief Shippy, whose detectives had been following the case, and they are now endeavoring to have him brought back, an indictment may be obtained, and the colonel will, undoubtedly, be found guilty.

Mrs. Tucker, her mother, Mrs. John A. Logan, and her son, Capt. Logan Tucker, are on their way from Washington to Chicago to push the charges. Their attorney declares that unless Colonel Tucker returns voluntarily from St. Louis, an indictment charging him with being a fugitive will be sought and extradition proceedings begun.

Dr. Behrns, who was called in late Tuesday evening to assist Colonel Tucker professionally, says his condition is critical.

Colonel Tucker has not left his room since he went there Tuesday morning. He has given orders to each member of his party that they must not talk either to the press or to anyone else. The Tucker party consists of Colonel Tucker, the woman who is registered as his sister, a valet, and G. H. Frey, and sister. They occupy three connecting rooms with bath.

Mrs. Logan Says Help
Is Object of the Wife

Mrs. Tucker and her mother, Mrs. John A. Logan, left for Chicago last night in order to be present if they are needed at the proceedings against Colonel Tucker, and before leaving Mrs.

MINERS TRAPPED; 100 BELIEVED DEAD

Explosion in Coal Mine Is Followed by Fire—Rescuers Bailed.

VIENNA, Oct. 14.—Over 100 miners are reported to have been killed in an explosion and fire today in the Koenigs coal mine.

No hope remains of rescuing any of the imprisoned miners, as the fire has shut off the work of rescue.

Six charred bodies have been recovered, and their condition was such that it is certain that they were burned, rather than killed by the explosion.

It is believed that there are nearly 200 entombed in the mine, and that they will all be burned to death.

ALBANIA WILL ASK DUKE TO BE KING

Royal Italian Slated for Throne
Should Country Secure Independence.

ROME, Oct. 14.—A king who awaits the Duke of the Abruzzi if the proposed international conference will grant the Albanians their independence.

A message from Avlona today says that the Albanian leaders have decided to offer the duke the crown of Albania, if their desires for independence are gratified.

The duke is well known in Albania, whose ports he has frequently gone as commander of Italian ships.

FORAKER WAGING INEFFECTIVE WAR

Report Has It That Former Fire-Eater Has Turned Traitor.

TAKES NO OPEN PART IN DESPERATE FIGHT

Working Under Cover, Rumor Says
He Is Rallying Old Guard to Knife Taft.

By JAMES HAY, Jr.

STUEBENVILLE, Oct. 14.—If all the things that are said about Joseph Benson Foraker are true, the senior Senator from Ohio is not doing a great work in this campaign. If half the reports regarding his conduct are founded on fact, he presents one of the saddest pictures of political treachery in this generation.

In his tour of Ohio, Judge Taft has heard many stories of the manner in which Foraker is working against him and the Republican cause in general. This man, who was wont to scorn and despise all Democrats, has come to be regarded by them as one of their greatest allies. This Senator, who has again and again commanded the support of Ohio Republicans, by his utterances of party faith and party greatness, is pointed out as disloyal, a menace and a disgrace.

Outwardly he is calm, quiet, not talking neither interest nor part in the desperate fight Republicans are making to insure their success in the State. Politically, he is a reclus, who refuses to receive newspaper men and declines to make any statement concerning his attitude in the campaign. Personally, he is crabbled, morose, and sullen. He keeps to himself, working silently, quietly, and discreetly in his office in Cincinnati. The only evidence of activity is the large force of clerks and stenographers he employs. What these employees are doing he refuses to divulge.

Politicians' Opinion.

But politicians in Ohio make the explanation he withholds. They say many letters are sent from the Foraker office to all parts of the State and that not one of them is in behalf of Taft. His followers, who are still loyal to him, are working hard, but they are not working for the national ticket. Some of the time they spend sharpening the edges of their political knives. And the situation, as a result of it all, is that, while Foraker's influence is not strong enough to do the national ticket any appreciable harm, it may result in the election of a Democratic Legislature and the sending of a Democratic Senator to take his place in Washington.

A few days ago, when the rumors of Foraker's disloyalty grew more and more persistent, I went to his office to ask what he intends to do in the campaign. Following his rule of receiving no newspaper men, he refused to see me. A message was then sent him asking him if he planned to run for "Independent speaking campaign" or the Senate, which he said some "see" ago he would inaugurate. He said word that he had never said he would make such a campaign, that he had never intended to do it, and that he would not do it.

His change of plan is said to have been brought about by his knowledge that such a campaign would not be successful. He has decided to remain on the stump while the State still rang with the denunciation of him by his enemies. He has decided to remain on the stump while the State still rang with the denunciation of him by his enemies. He has decided to remain on the stump while the State still rang with the denunciation of him by his enemies.

Although it is possible that court-martial might be held in the event Colonel Tucker is found guilty of wife desertion by the civil courts, it is said at the War Department today, that such a course is unlikely in view of the fact that he is regarded as so seriously ill that he may die in a few months. In event a court-martial should be ordered it would be on the ground of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman.

Charles M. Heller, a former Washingtonian, who thought he had discovered an easy get-rich-quick scheme by acting as unauthorized agent for the Munsey Magazine, and who was arrested in Pittsburgh a few days ago for collecting subscriptions for the publication, which he had been running out of his own house, was fined $50, with an alternative of thirty days in the workhouse.

A letter was received at Police Headquarters this morning, in which it was stated that Heller had been convicted of taking subscriptions for the Munsey Magazine, and that he had been fined $50, with an alternative of thirty days in the workhouse.

Although Heller has never been in trouble in Washington, he is well known here. For the last twenty years Heller has been present at nearly every fire that occurred in Washington, and he was almost always a conspicuous figure whenever there was any excitement.

WILL HONOR MICKLEY.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—John Jacob Mickley, of Whitehall, who hid the Liberty Bell and chimed of Old Christ Church from the British during the occupation of Philadelphia, will be honored November 20, when the Daughters of the American Revolution will dedicate a $1,000 tablet set in granite, which is to be placed in the Zion Reformed Church at Allentown.

Generally speaking, the senior Senator from Ohio is waging an ineffective fight, making a weak war against the nominee of his party. The time has passed when the silken tongue and costly combinations, deals which may here and there affect the nomination or election of a man for the Legislature, but which can not go so far as to compel a Republican to turn from Taft and go over to Bryan. Another thing which is true is that Foraker is rapidly losing touch with the people. His connections with the "ins" and "outs" of the campaign, which he is making public, are not doing him any good.

Men who are in politics are quick to jump from a sinking ship to the more comfortable band wagon of the winning man. And he has left about him only those who are resolved to go down to defeat with him.

CREEL MAY RESIGN, SAYS RUMOR AGAIN

SENOR CREEL,

Mexican Ambassador, Whose Business Interests May Force Him to Resign.

Charge of Mexican Embassy Refuses to Confirm Fifth
Report of Mexican Ambassador's Resignation.
State Department Not Informed.

Still another report has reached Washington that Senor Don Enrique C. Creel, Mexican ambassador to the United States, has resigned his post at the Capital. In fact, the report is taken to mean that Ambassador Creel has severed his connection with the diplomatic Corps of his country.

Senor Don Jose Y. Godoy, charge of the Mexican embassy, today declined to affirm the report, saying he preferred to wait until the State Department was informed.

Although the State Department has received no word of the ambassador's resignation, it is generally believed the report is true. This is the fifth rumor of its kind in the past year concerning the withdrawal of Ambassador Creel from Washington.

Some months ago Senor Creel made it known that his private interests and his duties attending the governorship of Chihuahua, to which he was elected some time ago, demanded more of his time than he is able to give while holding the diplomatic post at Washington. He is an exceedingly wealthy man, owns many mines and other business interests in Mexico and has been compelled to spend a great deal of time in his own country to look after these projects.

Ambassador Creel and his family were heartily welcomed in Washington when they came here several years ago, and have been among the lavish hosts during the winter season.

Program of Peace
Strikes Big Snag

Austria and Servia Sure to Go to War, Is Report.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Austria and Servia will surely go to war, is the reported conclusion today of Foreign Minister Lowinsky, of Russia, and Foreign Secretary Grey, of England, who have been canvassing the Balkan situation since last Saturday.

Inability to satisfy the demands of Servia in the forthcoming international conference will be the rock on which the peace program will split.

Realizing the seriousness of the situation the conferees, according to a statement attributed to both Grey and Lowinsky, will bend their efforts to "bolivizing" the war and to prevent a general participation by the Balkan states, and other powers.

Ignores Servian Claim.

Austria has indicated that she will absolutely ignore Servia's demands for compensation, either in money or territory. She argues that as Servia was not a signatory to the treaty, the latter should have no voice in the conference.

Austria's stubbornness on this point is only matched by Servia's insistence, and diplomats here see no way of avoiding a rupture.

Turkey notified the foreign office today that she was ready for any move Bulgaria may make. She has completed the mobilization of her military forces, and announces her ability to repel any invasion from Bulgaria.

Bulgaria Silent.

Bulgaria has not yet issued an ultimatum to declare war in case Bulgarian independence is not recognized, according to today's dispatches; but Turkey is expecting it at any moment. When it is received, the porte will stand firmly by its former note to Bulgaria; that the independence of Bulgaria can not now be recognized.

It is confidently believed that Turkey will agree to a recognition after the powers have indicated such a course of action.

Bulgaria Seeks Excuse
To Annex Macedonia

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 14.—Reports from Salonica and Monastir today have convinced the porte that Bulgaria is fomenting disorders in Macedonia to furnish an excuse for annexing Macedonia.

AVIATOR HERRING DEPARTS SILENTLY

Left Fort Myer Last Night
With His Aeroplane, Packed.

PRELIMINARY TESTS WILL BE IN SECRET

His Destination Unknown—Refused to Talk or Pose for Photographer.

A. M. Herring, the aviator, who brought his aeroplane to Washington in a trunk and two suit cases on Monday morning, folded his miniature airplane, strapped up his trunks and slipped away from Fort Myer last night without informing anyone where he was going.

Mr. Herring apparently did not inform even the officers of the aeronautical board just when he would leave or where he expected to make his preliminary flight. Keeping up the air of mystery with which he has surrounded himself for many weeks, Mr. Herring evidently returned to Fort Myer late in the evening and not his machine away in his trunk when no one connected with the post was present.

He said yesterday evening that he would inform Major Squier by letter as to the place where he would make his preliminary flights, but the War Department had received no such communication up to a late hour this afternoon.

May Be in New York.

Mr. Herring, however, is believed to have gone to New York, and it is probable that he will leave that city in a few days, either for Indiana or Atlantic City, which he has named as two places fitted to his taste.

Little did these poor old ancient far-removed Egyptians, who read their hieroglyphics before Mark Twain discovered them; who named their kings for games of chance and cigarettes, and who worked and sweated in the hot sun for many ages without ever knowing about sheath skirts, vaudeville, and other adjuncts of civilization, imagine that even in their one pre-eminent line, America would outstep them.

For long, long centuries, the Sphinx has been standing on the burning sands of that old country, the incarnation of silence, and year after year, people have been going there and thinking that perhaps it was the most silent thing in the world.

Sphinx Outdone.

But then came A. M. Herring, one of our most widely advertised inventors of aeroplanes, and in one instant, he sends the glory of the Sphinx hurtling down through the ages, and through the press, and through the army tests of the United States, and through Washington, until Sphinx looks as gloomy as the inside of the Monument on a cloudy afternoon.

Herring has the Sphinx beaten so many ways that it's quite probable he'll go into the sphinxing business, if his aeroplane doesn't come up to the Government requirements. In the first place the Sphinx was born on a desert, the work of a downtrodden and silent people, and was placed under the injunction of silence.

No one knows just why Herring was so silent. All the other aviators, balloonists, airshipists, and other sailors of the air, who have invaded Fort Myer for many weeks past during the army tests, have been quite willing to converse, and let the world know through the newspapers just what they expect to do in aeronautics. Most of them have been glad to know of the interest in the flights taken by the public.

Silence Oppressive.

Herring came into Washington clad in mystery. He kept himself surrounded by a cloak of impenetrability ever since. He did not even take rooms in this city under his own name, but stopped with his friend, Hugh L. Willoughby.

Officers of the army explain Herring's silence by saying that much of his machine is not patented; that he has not even a description—on paper—of many of its parts, and that, consequently, he is afraid that some irresponsible person will borrow some of his ideas. Last night Herring left probably for some secluded spot, where he will make his preliminary flights, and then will return to Washington to make the final tests. He will be compelled to make the last tests in public; at least, General Allen, chief signal officer, said weeks ago, when Orville Wright's coming was under discussion, that the army would not permit the official trials to be made in secret.

Aviator's Appearance.

Herring is a young man, tall, well built, with fairly clear eyes, a face much lined for a man so young, and with the general air of a man who pays much attention to his work. He talks with a deep voice and is quick with his answers.

But he will not be photographed. That's another place where the Sphinx of the ancient world outsteps the Order of Egyptian Cigarette Namers is beaten by Herring—it can't help being photographed. Herring can, and only says:

"Tell the people I look like anyone else."

Long Examination.

The board, consisting of Major George O. Squier, Captain Wallace, and Lieutenants Lahm, Fulsio, Winter, Sweet, and Creevy, found the machine so interesting that it took a three hours' examination last night before as a board there were ready to say that there had been actual delivery of an aeroplane.

"During our conference with Mr. Herring," said Major Squier after the board's visit, "we found enough to convince us that the Government will make no mistake in trying out this machine. Every assistance possible will be given him. The board cannot prevent his taking the machine away from Fort Myer, as there is nothing in the specifications to require him to get permission to remove the aeroplane."
